

TRAIN : Eurostar

JOURNEY : London to Paris (or vice versa)

Journey Duration : Scenic Day Trips

Day to Day Itinerary

Eurostar London Paris train leaves from St. Pancras international station and enters a covered bridge that leads to the Kings Cross station few minute later. Soon you will be out of the tunnel and the train will cross the wastelands of eastern London. Around 10-12 minutes later you will also get a chance to see the Queen Elizabeth II suspension bridge. Soon Eurostar enters another short tunnel which is the crossing of Thames and emerges to the county of Kent. By this time Eurostar attains its full speed of 182mph. Eurostar then passes through Medway Viaduct that carries High Speed 1 across Medway River. You can see Rochester Cathedral and Rochester Castle on the left at this time. Eurostar enters in Channel Tunnel just after 35 minutes from leaving St. Pancras and it takes around 20 minutes to cross the Chunnel and it emerges into France. Some of the Eurostar trains may call at Lille while some pass it to move forward to Paris or Brussels. The lines for Paris and Brussels diverge just after Lille and London to Paris train moves on the track to Paris to reach Gare du Nord station.
